KEY WEST — Vitamin Sea Too finally cooled down out on the rough blue waters of the Atlantic Ocean on Saturday. In the end, it didn't matter.

The team from Pompano Beach registered only two catches on the final day of the World Sailfish Championship. But a commanding lead never evaporated on a warm day in Key West, as Vitamin Sea Too grabbed a $100,000 check, a Waterford crystal trophy and the tournament title.

Vitamin Sea Too entered Saturday 12 catches, three more than the next-closest competitor in the 110-boat field. The crew followed the same trail they blazed on the tournament's first two days and were rewarded with two catches by 10:30 a.m. And then...nothing.

"It was the longest day of my life," owner Tim Maddock said.

Sea Wolf, meanwhile, came on strong, nabbing three more sailfish on Saturday. Vitamin Sea Too failed to bring in another fish and anxiously made the trip back to Key West.

"It was a waiting game at that point," Maddock said.

It was enough for Maddock, Mike Reisert, Jon Krieg, Bryan Schultz, Chris Zidar and Mike Dinnen to be crowned champions at the awards dinner at Mallory Square.

Sea Wolf finished second overall with 12 catches. Counter Culture placed third with 12 sailfish, trailing Sea Wolf on time.

"My stomach still hurts from being nervous," said Reisert, a steak dinner sitting in front of him at the table reserved for the winners of the World Sailfish Championship.

"It was tough," Reisert said. "This is the best of the best."

For Vitamin Sea Too, the three-day event actually began about two weeks ago, when the crew traveled down to fish early and scout out the area.

Maddock said he ended the tournament exhausted. They also ended as champions.
